Regarding the Tinder-Box Crisis in Berlin, Germany

VAR DEP'T SUMMONS

Events in German Capital May Move Speedily To A Showdown

By John A. Reichmann
41 N. S. Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 21—General Lucius M. Clay, American Commander in Germany, hurried to Washington today for urgent consultation on the tinder-box Berlin crisis.

Clay was summoned home by the War Department as it became known that events in the German capital blocked by Russia may move speedily toward a showdown. The General left Frankfurt by plane Tuesday night accompanied by Ambassador Robert D. Murphy, is political adviser on German affairs. Clay is expected to arrive Thursday and will return to Berlin Friday.

At the same time, it was disclosed by an important Administration official working on the Berlin problem that if a war comes as a result of the situation it will have to be precipitated by Russia.

The United States policy, for the present at least, is to explore a way of settlement of the problem by very available diplomatic means, but that settlement must not impair American rights in Berlin and certainly will not be a withdrawal. Officials believe they have full public backing in such a program. There is complete unanimity not only within the Administration but with Republican leaders who helped to shape the bipartisan foreign policy program.

Best opinion among the foreign policy experts is that Russia's attitude in Berlin is inspired by her regrets in Yugoslavia, the loss of elections in Finland and Norway and recent anti-Communist demonstrations in Czechoslovakia.

Lewis Is Named Administrative Head

The college representatives also told the Courier that arrangements have been made to hold registration for the Class Center in the Bristol Municipal Building during the month of August, the exact date will be announced later. Interest in the new educational opportunity has been expressed by a number of groups in the area, including the Upper Bucks County Industrial Union Council, C. I. O. Council president, Frank Flatch, reports that the executive committee of the organization has approved scholarship grants to their members by members within the membership of the council.

MORRISVILLE HAS A SHIFT IN ACTIVITY

Playground Work For Younger Group Now At Wm. E. Case School

FINAL THREE WEEKS

MORRISVILLE, July 21 — The final three weeks at the summer playgrounds sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Association started Monday. Since they opened, an excellent turnout has been reported.

The playground for the younger boys and girls, from four to 11, shifts from the Manor Park School for the final three weeks to the William E. Case School.

Miss Helen Pennington, director, announces that children will make items for the Red Cross for veterans and children's hospitals. The playground is open from 9:30 until 11:30 a. m., and from 1 to 3 p. m. A party closed the Manor Park playground on Friday, with Dorothy Lippincott, Dolores Nirshl and Becky DiSanto in charge of games and Patsy Lippincott, Lois Lovett, Nancy Slack, Thelma Cowell and Carol Morgan in charge of refreshments. A scrap drive was conducted and a ton and a half of paper was collected and sold. Sixty children attended on an average per day.

At the Robert Morris Field playground, for older boys, James E. Wood is director. Seventy-five boys from nine to 14, inclusive, participate in a baseball league of four teams. Director Wood announces that all boys who participate regularly will be eligible for three baseball games. On Saturday, the boys will see the Philadelphia Athletics-Detroit Tigers game and on July 28 the game between the Phillies and Chicago Cubs. Both will be at Shibe Park in Philadelphia. Plans are being made by Wood to take the boys to see a game at Dunn Field with the Trenton Giants.

This playground is open each morning from 9 to 12 and will continue three more weeks.

A SUMMARY OF THE NEWS

Several hundred foreign agents have used the United Nations to cover subversive activities here, State Department representatives told a Senate committee. United Nations officials expressed surprise at the charge.

President Truman will ask the special session of Congress to ratify the international wheat agreement and approve the $65,000,000 loan to the United Nations for its East River home. It was indicated that he would appeal for a continuation of bipartisan foreign policy. It will be impossible for a "rump session" of Congress to translate the Republican 1948 platform pledges into law, said Herbert Brownell, manager of the Dewey Presidential campaign.

General Clay and his political adviser, Ambassador Murphy, left Germany for Washington to lay the latest facts on the Berlin situation before the President and his advisers. Russia offered to feed the Western sectors of Berlin, a proposal generally accepted as a propaganda device. The views of General Clay and Mr. Murphy are expected to be reflected in the next note to Moscow on the Berlin blockade.

The five nations in the Western European Union proclaimed complete identity of views in a com-

GLEANN BY SCRIBES

A six-year-old lad, "Jack" Frye, Doylestown, doesn't let money worry him. In fact, he turns his back on it when he sees it laying about on the ground.

"Jack" was visiting the Doylestown community field a few days ago, and saw a dollar bill beneath the grandstand. He picked it up and returned home to show his parents.

After informing where he had found it "Jack" added, "There's another one there just like it, but I didn't bother to bring that one."

After his mother advised him to retrieve that one also, "Jack" put it off for a time, then made the trip and found the dollar bill right where it had been since his first visit.

Bucks County Magistrates Association members heard Harold W. Pearce, of the Pennsylvania Public Service Institute, when they met at Doylestown at the end of the week. He was introduced by the new president of the association, Walter Scheetz, Riegelsville.

During the course of the meeting, the resignation of Russell Ferris, of Ottsville, as secretary, was read by the president, Andrew H. Dillon, Newtown, was appointed to replace him. The treasurer reported.

FOUR DIVORCES ARE GRANTED BY COURT

One Request Was Refused And One Listed For Argument

COSTS TO BE PAID

DOYLESTOWN, July 21 — Four divorces have been granted by Judge Calvin S. Boyer, upon the payment of costs, at a session of miscellaneous court, held Monday.

One divorce was refused and another placed on the list for Argument Court.

Libellants from Mechanicsville, Milford, Hilltown and Buckingham townships were granted their freedom.

Vivienne V. Popkin vs. Joseph M. Popkin. Master recommended refusal of divorce; libellant filed exceptions to the master's report; the Court handed down an opinion and decree dismissing the exceptions, approving the master's report and refusing the divorce.

It was refused on the grounds of insufficient evidence, the trifling nature of the complaints and particularly on the ground of collusion between the parties, the libellant having secured an agreement from the respondent not to contest the case. The Court held that such an agreement was fatal to her suit.

William C. Grace vs. Emma D. Grace, both of Newtown: Master recommended refusal of divorce; libellant filed exceptions to the master's report, who based his recommendation on the wife's agreement to the separation and alleged desertion. The Court directed the case to be placed on the argument list for the November Argument Court.

Evelyn Schmalz Plichta, Mechanicsville, vs. Frank Plichta. Master's report approved; decree of divorce to be entered upon payment of costs.

Janette Jeanne Johnston, Milford twp., vs. Hubert Burke Johnston, Tarentum. Master's report approved; decree of divorce to be entered upon payment of costs.

Industrial expositions are being scheduled in a number of cities so that residents can familiarize themselves with projects native to their communities, he added.

The observance of the state's heritage will be the second. The Pennsylvania Week was proclaimed initially last year.

BUNGALOW IS RAZED BY FIRE EARLY TODAY

Unoccupied Property At West Bristol Is A Total Loss

NO WATER AVAILABLE

A frame bungalow on Sixth avenue, just off Broadway, West Bristol, was destroyed by fire early this morning. The property had been vacant for about three weeks.

The flames this morning lighted the neighborhood and Bristol firemen were called to the scene at about four o'clock. They found the building a mass of flames, and as water was not available, they could do little to check the fire.

Newport Fire Company was called to bring their tank wagon, which they did, and in this manner the flames were quenched. They hauled water from a fire hydrant on Newport road, near Broadway.

Residents in the neighborhood said that the property was owned by a family named Sauer, of Philadelphia.

The origin of the blaze was not determined.

Foster Brands Arrest "Frameup"

NEW YORK—William Z. Foster, national chairman of the Communist Party in the United States, today branded his arrest on charges to overthrow the Government as a "frameup and a monstrous lie." They said that the "American people can now see to what desperate provocations President Truman is driven in an effort to win the election, by hook or by crook."

THE COMING PURGE

Symbol of all dictators is the queen in "Alice in Wonderland."

Whenever she got the jitters she would cry: "Off with his head!"

That is what the Cominform is doing now. It has just issued a manifesto which, translated into plain talk, is a demand for a world-wide purge. Communist setbacks throughout the world, culminating in open defiance of the Cominform by the Communist jackal, Tito of Yugoslavia, have by no means insured the defeat of the international Communist conspiracy. But they have frightened it.

And the first outcome of that fright is to be the elimination, everywhere in the world, of Communist who disagree with the most trivial clause of the party platform, even unintentionally.

From now on, the manifesto says, Communist parties everywhere must avoid "any violation of the organizational structure" of the Russian Communist party.

There must be "strict centralism, conscious discipline, unity of will and action, no factions or groups permitted" from the highest to the lowest.

To anyone familiar with the manner in which Stalinists use words, this means thought control from Moscow. Gone are the days of popular fronts, of tolerance of minor deviations in opinion among disciplined party members who agree 99 per cent,

Communists in America or

Greece or France or China, must now be 100 per centers. All others must recant or be kicked out. In nations where Communists control the state, they face prison or death.

It will be interesting to see what change this decree will make in the attitude of American Communist toward Henry Wallace.

His party is a "popular front."

Moscow no longer permits popular fronts. But there may be a special dispensation applying to such fronts until the Communists have completely taken them over.

Nominee Dewey is an immaculate dresser, but he will have no difficulty in acquiring a pair of overalls and a straw hat for the usual hay-pitching performance later in the campaign.

The White House roof will not be repaired immediately, but whether because of excessive cost or an "what's the use" attitude on the part of the present tenant is not revealed.

of the local government. I don't believe that it is necessary to call in state and federal help in running our local affairs, and the more interest we take in improving our local government the better will be the state and federal government."

He outlined the details of a course in civil law and procedure which the justices of Bucks county will will be twenty-four sessions. There will be a school in session every week after it gets under way. The init was a dark night, the road was Brusha testified that he was travhe struck Leatherbury. He said he said Brusha.

After he hit Leatherbury, Brusha

SAWDUST MOLASSES

PORTLAND, Ore.—(INS)—Cattle may soon be eating sawdust if wood-sugar-molasses feeding trials are successful. This molasses is made from Douglas fir wood wastes by the chemical process of converting wood cellulose into sugar. If the chemical process is carried further, the sugar becomes alcohol. Groups of swine and cattle are receiving diets which include the "sawdust" ration in place of barley.

Too Many One-Handed Drivers On Highways

"There are too many one-handed drivers on the highways," Keystone Automobile Club observes in commenting on the summer practice of many motor vehicle operators in "cooling" left hands and arms by gripping the roof or allowing arms to dangle from the windows of moving vehicles.

"Operation of an automobile is a serious business," said John Armstrong, Manager of the Doylestown Division of the Club. "While steering under normal conditions is an easy task, one never knows when an emergency may arise requiring all the skill of an operator to avoid an accident."

"Obviously, the driver using only one hand is at a disadvantage under emergency conditions. The more skillful he is the better he can meet the situation, but the fraction of a second required to get both hands into action may be the difference between safety and injury."

Another fault found with the practice is that protruding arms are confusing to other drivers who think some kind of turning or stopping signal is intended. With the great variety of "signals" used by motorists, it is not surprising that any movement of the left arm is construed as an attempt to inform drivers following of an intended change in course.

"Pointing" is still another bad habit, the Club official declared. When trying to show passengers something interesting on the left side of the road, drivers will be conferring a favor on fellow motorists by directing their attention vocally instead of extending the arm outside in a signaling movement, he said.

Today's Quiet Moment

By the Rev. Smerian B. Brown,
Pastor
Bethel A. M. E. Church

Prepare us, O God, for serving Thy Church and for dedicating our lives to Thee. Give us a concept of discipleship which defies self interest and which accepts the day to day sacrifice which the Kingdom demands when choice must be made. Strengthen us to follow righteousness and to shun evil; to replace gaining with giving; to render service above the enjoyment of pleasure. May we count our smallest efforts in terms of the sacrifice of devoted living, using each moment for service and each deed for Thy cause, through Jesus we pray. Amen.

TELLS WHY MANY GREAT ATHLETES FAIL AT OLYMPICS

By Davis J. Walsh
(I.N.S. Sports Writer)

LONDON, July 21 — (INS)—This outburst, which comes as part of our regular pep-show service on past and present Olympians, could very well be classified under the following:

"The human equation: or why men go wrong."

It seems to have a special application to sundry ex-Olympic team members, of whom so much was expected and so little heard at the show-down hour.

It might even explain, in part, why America so regularly fails to exploit to the full its natural manpower strength, although the quaint fallacy of our rigid selection system is only one of several reasons for that.

But if, in advance, all this suggests a lurid recital of Bacchanalia on the loose, forget it.

Emotional instability and the eccentric outlook—more than win and wassail—are the conspicuous factors. As, for instance, the small-town boy who hit Paris with the rest of the '24 team and wasn't seen for three days.

He'd been walking around, goggle-eyed, until his shoes were practically worn down to anklets.

Lady athletes, by the way, are not generally open for genteel discussions, which would seem to eliminate any necessity of passing upon the merits of the Eleanor Holm Jarrett (Mrs. Billy Rose) incident. But since the 1936 committee was at pains to make the matter a public issue, this much is worth adding:

Sobriety wasn't a notable feature of the voyage, in its late stages, and had become just a mite unfashionable by the time the ship started up the river to Hamburg.

Raucous voices filled the air. Male shield-bearers seemed to be talking about aimlessly, and, once or twice, there came a burst of ribald song.

Still, the American party managed to make the threshold of Hamburg's city hall next morning for the mayor's reception to the team. He spoke amiably in German for a few minutes, finishing with this interpreted version:

"Waiters will pass among you with the wine of the region, of which we feel justifiably proud."

The boys were feeling a little impulsive and didn't wait to take the glasses from the waiters. They took the trays. The source of supply was still holding up, under pressure, an hour later.

Only a few hours before, Mrs. Jarrett, an Olympic back-stroke champion twice-over, had been publicly dropped from the team for quaffing a few extra-mal beakers of champagne.

But of course the committee rather quickly had reached a point where it couldn't afford to be consistent.

After all, it couldn't fire everybody.

A predecessor in charge of the Paris team didn't even go that far with a handsome and accomplished Big Three gent, with a fancy for a bar side view of life at the Ritz. Every now and then, they'd get him out of there and hold a special squad trial.

He'd win it, and go back in.

He would have done no worse than second in the race itself, but tripped and fell headlong a few yards from the finish.

One guy was a problem in another way. He kept parading the boulevards in striped pants, top hat and tails; hoping apparently to be mistaken for a man-about-Paris.

Another was still in his evening clothes at the Stadium bar in mid-afternoon. And, in the interests of terpsichorean act, an American winner took his title very early in the meeting.

This left him free to go into his nightly soft-shoe buck dance at Kiley's in the Montmartre, which he invariably did—with and without invitation. But often enough the real trouble didn't come from these frivolous seekers after jollity and the death pallor.

The under-coaches, by and large, weren't noticeably bright and their lot was generally troublous—a situation hardly aided by the attitude of a famous athlete of the day.

He disdained them, paid them no heed in a very marked manner. Brusquely said they couldn't tell him anything he didn't already know.

He was right, at that—but the episode didn't serve to restore the old campus strive to a squad which, one way or another, seemed to have a distinct flair for the open doorway, impetuously arrived at.

The climax was reached when two name guys of the period, who had privately hated one another's innards, publicly decided upon reconciliation.

It must have been a remarkable occasion, for, though both were non-drinkers, they didn't make the respective bedsides until 5:45 a. m.

That was less than six hours before they were due on the track in one of the relay finals, which certainly was very deplorable.

Not quite so much so was the fact that they broke the world's record that afternoon.

But that's life among the great American Olympians for you. There are 300 or 400 of them, meaning there's that much more chance to develop phobias, neuroses, psychoses and just plain onerousness.

They have too much ability, too many interests, too few inhibitions. In general, though, skill covers all liabilities. But it doesn't make for reliability in American Olympic endeavor.

LANGHORNE NOW IN FOURTH PLACE IN "SUB" LEAGUE

LANGHORNE, July 21—Langhorne replaced the Democrat club as occupants for fourth place in the Bristol Suburban League, last evening. The Langhorne team was leading the Democrats, 6-1, when the latter forfeited the game in the eighth inning.

Umpire Voges forfeited the game to the Legion after he had ordered "Charlie" Kohler, Democrat catcher, out of the game for protesting a decision. When Kohler left the game the Democrats did not have enough players to finish.

Dale Miller did the pitching for the Legionnaires, holding the Demos to six hits. Langhorne made six hits off "Joie" Sagolia, but three of these mixed with three passes gave the Langhorne team five runs in the seventh inning. Until then it was a 1-1 ball game.

Fleming led the hitters of the tilt with a double and single. Kohler had two singles for the losers.

ST. ANN'S WINS OVER HIBERNIANS BY SCORE OF 10 TO 4

Before one of the largest crowds of the season last evening on Leedom's field, the St. Ann's team shelled Earl Wagner from the peak and handed the Hibernians a 10-4 lacing in a Suburban League contest.

It was the first defeat of the season for Wagner who had chalked up five straight mound victories for the Hibs. The "Saints" made 11 hits off the minor league hurler and lost another hit when "Sugar" Sallustio failed to touch first, after rapping out a would-be triple. Four of the St. Ann's hits were for extra bases.

Paul Cervellero twirled for St. Ann's and allowed the Hibs eight hits. Cervellero had fine control in passing but one batter and striking out six.

St. Ann's has a two game lead on first place with six games remaining to be played.
